Short Films “Are You Close Enough” and “Violence Against Fruits” Compete in Eveo.com’s Pre-Launch Contest

Denpasar-Bali, Indonesia (April 7, 2000) – Filmmaker Maria Clementine Wulia has announced that her short films “Are You Close Enough” and “Violence Against Fruits” are competing in the Pre-Launch Contest held by Eveo.com, an internet short film provider based in San Francisco, CA, USA. Both short films are 3 minutes in length, and have been released on February 23, 2000.

“Are You Close Enough” is a short film about traveling. In this short experimental documentary, Clementine Wulia visually tells the story of ourselves as travellers. This film is competing in the “travel” category. The editors of Eveo.com have also decided to enter this film in “Witness the World Competition”, a short film competition about traveling held by Eveo.com and LonelyPlanet.com, the acclaimed travel guide book publisher.

“Violence Against Fruits” attempts to express the filmmaker’s thoughts and her personal experience about racism. This film is competing in the “twisted” category at Eveo.com. These 2 films are competing against hundreds of short films under 4 minutes from around the world,
